

One day, the animals in Hula Farm found an injured sparrow near the well. There was blood on one of his wings and he could hardly talk. The animals felt sorry for the little sparrow and did their best to help him.

The duck made a bed of straw for him to rest and the hen fed him some grains of wheat. The swan bandaged his wing. The cow, the pig and the sheep took turn to watch over him. They were worried that the farmer's cat might come and attack the little sparrow. The little sparrow recovered after a few days and was very grateful to his friends.
